

ABSTRACT

A method and system for providing a user with a presence service includes a terminal having an application with addresses representing different objects. The terminal includes a presence program logic connected to the application, the presence program logic being connected to a presence managing system. The presence program logic includes interface interacting means for using at least one interface present in the application to integrate the presence service with the services of the application.